NJBIA President and CEO Michele N. Siekerka, Esq. has posted the following note to Member Companies and New Jersey employers regarding resources to address the coronavirus.

Dear NJBIA Member/NJ Employer,

As you know, the coronavirus, and the respiratory disease it causes, COVID-19, pose a serious global public health threat that could have impacts on the workplace in the United States.

NJBIA has taken part in preparedness calls with Gov. Phil Murphy and the New Jersey Department of Health (DOH) and is continuing to advise our members of information and resources available to them as it relates to preparedness and response in the workplace for this disease.

The NJDOH has set up a 24-hour public hotline (1-800-222-1222) with trained professionals to answer any questions about COVID-19.

We hope your business and employees will find the following coronavirus-related resources helpful during this dynamic time.
